FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

St. Augustine topic for CDU seminar

The Catholic Distance University (CDU) will offer a new seminar St. Augustine: Confessions and The City of God, March 16 – April 6. Dr. Robert Royal, graduate dean and president of Faith and Reason Institute, is the seminar author and instructor.

This online seminar will guide students through two of the most influential texts in Western Christianity, written by one of the greatest thinkers and saints. In the first week's reading of The Confessions, the focus will be on the author's desire to know "God and the soul." The next two weeks will be devoted to the historical and political dimensions of St. Augustine's other great work, The City of God. Students who complete this seminar should have a firm grasp of Augustine's vision of the dynamics of human life as it is lived in both its personal and communal dimensions.

CDU's online seminars provide solid, authentic Catholic teachings in a flexible learning format. Participants log into a seminar course room at a time that best meets their schedule. Opportunity for group discussion and interaction with other adults and the seminar instructor is designed into the course format. This seminar can be taken for continuing education, undergraduate or graduate credit.
